BUILDOFFSITE Announce New Collaboration

Leading offsite construction membership body BUILDOFFSITE (BOS) has announced it will be partnering with Offsite Expo for this year's event.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary this year, BOS is today continuing to be the principal and trusted voice of the industry in the world of offsite construction and has members based in the UK and across Europe, Asia and North America.

Building on these international connections, BOS will co-host the Offsite Summit at Offsite Expo, focusing on international best practice on day one of the event and showcasing funded strategic research, industry guidance and construction innovations on day two.

Dirk Vennix, Executive Director of BUILDOFFSITE, said he was delighted to be collaborating with the event.

"I am delighted to be partnering with Offsite Expo," said Dirk.

"This expo has regularly exhibited the best of the offsite construction industry, so to be able to highlight the international expertise of BOS members and other key stakeholders is very exciting."

"There has been a great amount of change in the offsite construction sector in the 20 years since BUILDOFFSITE was launched and Offsite Expo being the biggest showcase for the offsite industry is the ideal platform to demonstrate that change and future innovations and ideas."

As well as the collaboration with BOS, this year's event will also feature networking opportunities, with nearly 5,000 construction professionals attending over the two days and custom-built features and live demos showcasing a broad spectrum of panelised, volumetric systems, pod and prefabricated MEP solutions.

Amy Pryce, Event Director for Offsite Expo added: "We are extremely pleased to have BOS join us for this year's event to commemorate their 20th anniversary and the increased focus on international offsite knowledge transfer."

"BOS will be joining many other industry partners at this year's event, including the Light Steel Frame Association (LSFA), Modular and Portable Building Association (MPBA), Structural Timber Association (STA), Steel Construction Institute (SCI) and the Concrete Centre."

"All of these partners will come together to make Offsite Expo the largest and most comprehensive offsite construction event in the UK."

First held in 2019, the Offsite Expo is a free to attend exhibition, with an embedded seminar programme, highlighting the best of the offsite construction industry.

Attendees will also be able to take advantage of the expertise and knowledge of more than 150 offsite manufacturers and suppliers and hear from more than 100 speakers in the Explore Offsite CPD Masterclasses, as well as free consultations with offsite experts. BOS members will be offered a 10% discount on exhibition rates.

There will also be a dedicated Offsite Connect buyers and specifiers forum, with more than 100 construction industry professionals participating.

And lastly Offsite Expo will celebrate the very best in offsite construction, at the Offsite Construction Awards on 17 September.

Offsite Expo will take place on 17-18 September 2024 at the Coventry Building Society Arena. For more information, please visit offsite-expo.co.uk

About Offsite Expo

Launched in 2019, Offsite Expo brings together the sector's most influential organisations, individuals, commentators, and business leaders who are driving change in the construction sector. The event plays host to the leading UK and international offsite manufacturers and component suppliers showcasing a broad spectrum of panelised, volumetric modular systems, pod and prefabricated MEP solutions. Manufacturers, software developers, engineers and architects are transforming the way buildings are designed and constructed. Presenting a compelling proposition - Offsite Expo 2024 will feature a combination of advanced offsite manufacturing approaches and smart digital construction technology. Now in the fifth year, Offsite Expo will take place on 17-18 September 2024 at the Coventry Building Society Arena alongside the Offsite Awards which are celebrating their ten-year anniversary.

About BUILD OFFSITE (BOS)

Since its establishment in 2004, BOS has been at the forefront of championing, advocating, and facilitating the widespread adoption of offsite methodologies to revolutionise the built environment.

As the quintessential authority in the construction sector, BOS stands as a beacon of impartiality, tirelessly advocating for the seamless fusion of offsite and pre-manufacturing techniques, uniting buyers and suppliers in a transformative alliance. Through strategic alliances with our esteemed membership, governmental bodies, and industry luminaries, BOS is committed to catalysing enduring, positive change, underpinned by our ethos of #CollaboratingForImpact.

Central to our initiatives is the BUILD OFFSITE Property Assurance Scheme (BOPAS), established in 2013 to uphold the highest standards of quality and reliability in offsite construction. With over 100 accreditations to date, BOPAS serves as a testament to our unwavering dedication to excellence.

BOS unites industry professionals and stakeholders through a dynamic array of engagement platforms, including our thought-provoking event program and the dynamic Built Environment Working Group.
